

PRIVACY POLICY

Cascadia Properties Trust and/or its related, associated, affiliated, successor and subsidiary entities, (collectively, "Cascadia," "we," "us" and "our") are committed to protecting your personal information. This Privacy Policy (the "Policy") governs the collection, use and disclosure of your personal information in any communication or interaction you may have with us, whether it be in-person, over the telephone, in writing or electronic.

By submitting your personal information, or by using a Cascadia website (the "Site"), you accept this Policy and consent to its terms and such terms described to you at the time of collection of your personal information. If you do not agree to the terms of this Policy, please do not use the Site.

Policy Amendments

This Policy may be modified, revised or updated at Cascadia's discretion, at any time, without notice to you. Please check back from time to time for such amendments. By continuing to view, browse or use the Site following any such modification or revision, you agree to be bound by such modification or revision.

What is Personal Information?

"Personal Information" is personally identifiable information about you, including your name, residential address and e-mail address, and your views and personal opinions. Publicly available information, such as business contact information or a public directory listing of your name, address, telephone number or information that is aggregated and not associated with a specific individual, including demographic information and statistics, is not considered Personal Information.

What Personal Information will Cascadia Collect?

We will only request personal information from you that is necessary to establish, manage and maintain our relationship with you. Personal Information is collected by Cascadia when you provide it to us, such as when you subscribe for alerts, request event reminders, or contact us through a contact form. We may also collect your IP address when you use the Site and we keep track of your dealings with us, including details of your visits to our Site and the resources that you access, including, but not limited to, traffic data, location data, weblogs and other communication data.

We may also receive Personal Information from our business partners and other third parties, provided that such third parties confirm to us that they have obtained your consent or we have obtained your consent in this regard.

What Non-Personal Information will Cascadia Collect?

We collect certain non-personal information which is recorded by the standard operation of our Internet servers on an anonymous basis, such as the operating system and type of browser you are using, the sections of the Site you visit, the Site pages visited, and any content you post to or download from the Site.

This non-identifiable information is used on an aggregate basis and in a non-personally identifiable form, including: (i) for Site and system administration purposes; (ii) to improve the Site; (iii) to conduct internal reviews of the number of visitors to the Site; (iv) to help us better understand visitors' use of our Site; (v) to respond to specific requests from our visitors; and (vi) to protect the security or integrity of our Site when necessary. Cascadia's servers may also automatically record information when you visit our website, including the URL that directed you to our website, your IP address, browser type and the date and time of your visit.

Cookies

When you view the Site, we generally collect and store some information on your computer. This information will be stored in a "Cookie," which is a file created on your computer's hard drive, and will help us in many ways. For example, Cookies allow us to tailor the Site to better match your interests and preferences. With most Internet browsers, you can erase Cookies from your computer hard drive, block the creation of Cookies, or receive a warning before a Cookie is stored, although doing so may affect your use of the Site and your ability to access certain features of the Site.

Other Technologies

Our Site may use Web beacon, gif or other technologies. When you access certain web pages, a non-identifiable notice of that visit is generated which may be processed by us. These technologies usually work in conjunction with cookies. If you don't want your cookie information to be associated with your visits to these pages, you can set your browser to turn off cookies. If you turn off cookies, Web beacon technologies will still detect visits to these pages, but the notices they generate cannot be associated with other non-identifiable cookie information and are disregarded.

How Will Cascadia Use the Information We Collect?

Cascadia collects and discloses your personal information for the following purposes:

- to contact and correspond with you;
- to respond to your communications and requests;
- to meet legal, regulatory, audit, security and financial requirements under federal and provincial regulations;
- to maintain business records for reasonable periods of time; and
- to conduct market research and gather demographic and statistical information about our users, for managing our business.

Also, you may indicate that you are interested in receiving information from Cascadia. If so, your personal information will also be used to contact you or to send you e-mail materials and other mailings about productions or projects that might be of interest to you. You always have the option to tell us not to share your personal information with third parties or to exclude you from offers for targeted advertising.

We may be involved in the sale or transfer of some or all of our businesses. As part of that sale or transfer transaction, we may disclose your personal information to the acquiring organization, but will require the acquiring organization to agree to protect the privacy of your personal information in a manner that is consistent with the Policy.

Limited disclosure of Personal Information to third parties may be required as part of Cascadia fulfilling its stated business duties and day-to-day operations. However, information will only be disclosed to such persons if they have entered into a written agreement with us to abide by this Policy.

Processing of Personal Information

Your personal information may be processed and stored outside of the province in which you reside and/or outside of Canada. Under the laws of these other jurisdictions, in certain circumstances foreign courts, law enforcement agencies or regulatory agencies may be entitled to access your personal information without notice to you. By submitting your Personal Information, you agree to this transfer, storing or processing.

Consent

By providing us with your Personal Information, you consent to our using your Personal Information for the purpose set forth above. Other than as required by law, your Personal Information will not be used for any other purpose without your consent.

Security

Technical, contractual, administrative and physical security measures and safeguards, such as locked cabinets, restricted access and the use of passwords and firewalls have been adopted to protect your personal information against loss or theft, as well as unauthorized access, disclosure, copying, use or modification.

Information collected from our Site is kept in a safe and secure system.

Links to Other Sites

The Site may contain links to independently owned, controlled and/or managed third party Internet sites to which the Policy does not apply. Should you select such a link, you will leave the Site. If you view these third-party sites, the sites may assign a cookie. Cascadia does not control these cookies, nor is it responsible for any collection or use of your information by these third parties.

How to Correct Your Personal Information

Cascadia wants to ensure that information about you is accurate, complete and current. Please inform Cascadia of any change of name, address or other information. In addition, you have the right to access the Personal Information that Cascadia has collected, stored, and disclosed about you, subject to any legal restrictions. If there are errors in the information in your files, you may request that it be changed. If we have disclosed inaccurate information about you to a third party, we will be pleased to contact the third party in order to advise them of the error.

In order to access this information, you must put your request in writing to the individual referred to below.

How to Access Your Personal Information

If you have any questions, concerns or would like more information about the collection, use or disclosure of your personal information by Cascadia, or if you simply want to know whether we have any of your personal information on file, you may contact us at the following address:

e-mail: ir@cascadiatrust.ca

mail: 200 – 8809 Heather Street, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada V6P 3T1

If Cascadia refuses access to you, it will provide you with the reasons for its refusal upon request. Exceptions may include information that contains references to other individuals, information that cannot be disclosed for legal, security or commercial proprietary reasons, and information that is subject to solicitor-client or litigation privilege.